SOLIFEMAR SUSTAINABLE

What does it mean to be sustainable?

Being sustainable means carrying out our activities in a way that meets present needs without compromising the resources or opportunities of future generations.

We strive to maintain a balance between economic growth, environmental protection, and social well-being, in order to care for our surroundings and ensure a better future for everyone.

Sustainable tourism is the development and management of tourism activities that fully consider their economic, social, and environmental impacts, while meeting the needs of visitors, the industry, the natural environment, and host communities, ensuring the conservation of resources for future generations. (Definition based on the World Tourism Organization — UNWTO)

That is why we decided to join the Biosphere Commitment in 2019.

This is an official quality certification program aligned with the 17 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), and it plays a key role in achieving truly sustainable tourism.

We are confident that, with this approach, we can reach all our goals together.

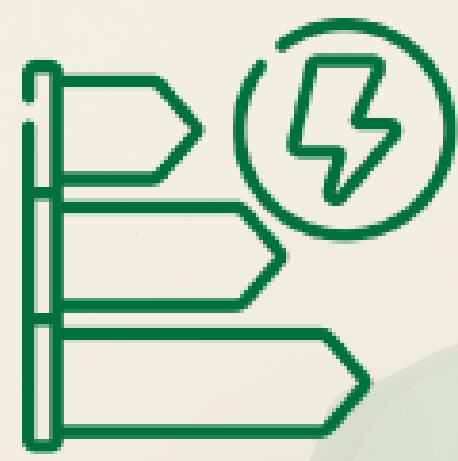

Certification renewed annually since 2019
